Psychologist claims

Billiot was on a mission to kill the Croll family

By BRENT MACEY

A clinical psychologist testified during the third day of the James Billiot trial in Gulfport Wednesday that Billiot is a "paranoid schizophrenic" who felt he had a mission to perform when he killed his mother, Audrey Croll, stepfather Wallace Croll, and stepmother Cheryl Croll on Thanksgiving Day in 1981.

William Johnson, a consultant for the Mississippi State Hospital in Whitfield, stated Billiot felt the Crolls "were wicked people because they placed a curse on him through Satan."

The statement made by Johnson was read from a report on Billiot compiled when the defendant was sent to the mental institution last summer to determine if he was fit to stand trial.

Although Billiot was diagnosed as a paranoid schizophrenic, doctors at the institution judged Billiot to be capable of standing trial and assisting in his defense.

Johnson also testified that Billiot said his mission was not complete because he did not kill Steven Croll, 13, the remaining son of Mr. and Mrs. Croll, who was not at home during the killings.

Johnson was the third witness called by defense attorneys Nicholas (Mac) Haas and Yvonne Sills, both of Bay St. Louis, who are attempting to prove their client is innocent by virtue of insanity.

On the first day of trial, presiding Circuit Court Judge Ruble Griffin noted that the test for insanity in Mississippi will be based on whether a person has the ability to know the difference between right and wrong.

At the trial, Johnson stated his examination of Billiot revealed that the defendant, during the murders, "was under the influence of delirium...and did not conform to the conventional standards of right and wrong."

He added at one point in his testimony that, "I would say he (Billiot) did know the difference between right and wrong and appreciated the standards of the other world...but he kept describing that he is from another world...that he is on a mission."

Johnson said, "Billiot has no clear sense of who he is."

The psychologist added that during the examination at Whitfield, Billiot referred to himself as Jesus Christ, Attila the Hun and Hitler, along with other names.

"What he is really doing is denying that he's James Billiot," Johnson said.

Johnson said tests of Billiot taken at the hospital showed the defendant had an intelligence quotient of 91, within the range considered normal to be of intelligence.

District Attorney Albert Necaise cross examined Johnson as to whether Billiot could be faking his delusions and "playing with people's minds" to appear insane.

Johnson said this was possible, that Billiot had the mental capability of deceiving people. However, he said the staff at Whitfield looked closely at that possibility and did not think Billiot was attempting to do this.

Throughout much of the trial early Wednesday morning, Billiot, dressed in a blue sports jacket and pants, smiled and laughed quietly to himself.

Other times during the trial, he appeared pensive, stroking his straggly goatee, and often looking at people throughout the courtroom.

Other witnesses called Monday for the defense included Bay St. Louis attorneys Henry Cook and Walter Gex. Both Cook and Gex were involved in a lunacy hearing for Billiot conducted in Hancock County in July 17, 1979.

Billiot was committed to East Mississippi State Hospital but released after nine days and considered "non dangerous" by psychologists at the hospital.

Gex, who represented Billiot at the trial, said this was possible, that Billiot had the mental capability of deceiving people. However, he said the staff at Whitfield looked closely at that possibility and did not think Billiot was attempting to do this.

$22,096 in restitution ordered

Otis may face more charges

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

A former Hancock County circuit clerk faces further prosecution if additional audits of the county circuit office reveal irregularities.

A Laurel judge Tuesday afternoon in Bay St. Louis ordered Henry Otis, former Hancock County circuit clerk, to pay $22,096 in restitution to the county.

Judge James D. Hester of the 18th Circuit Court district ordered the payment in lieu of a six-month jail sentence for a misdemeanor charge of failing to keep proper records.

After conferring privately for several minutes with Otis' attorney, Boyce Holleman, and Assistant District Attorney John (Sonny) Johnson, both of Gulfport, the judge ruled Otis serve six months in jail, but would suspend that sentence and require one-year probation if the defendant would pay $22,096 to the county.

Johnson said Wednesday in Gulfport he did not know if the amount represented money misappropriated or missing from the county office.

He reported District Attorney Albert Necaise would know those details, but he was unavailable for comment Wednesday.

In addition, Hester ordered Otis to also pay six percent annual interest on the amount based on a time period beginning April 1, 1981 and ending at the time the principle was paid.

Just after the court action, Hester said the six percent figure is based on a rate of interest the county would pay if it borrowed that amount.

Immediately after sentencing, Otis paid restitution with a personal check at the circuit clerk's office.

The judge stated, "You understand this sentence in no way constitutes a lien in a civil claim. And a civil case can not ban liability."

Hester also said, as another term of probation, the cost of any further audits of the circuit clerk's office exploring any possible irregularities while Otis was in office would be paid for by the former clerk.

A January County Grand Jury indicted Otis of a felony charge of embezzling some $49,000 in court fines and restitution funds.

Hester was appointed to hear the case

Garcia sentenced on six charges

By BRENT MACEY

Fritz Garcia, 28, of Lakeshore pled guilty to two counts of kidnapping, one count of rape, one count of armed robbery and one count of burglary in Circuit Court in Gulfport Tuesday.

He was sentenced to a total of 90 years with consecutive sentences totaling 30 years in the Mississippi State Penitentiary in Parchman by Judge J. Ruble Griffin.

On the kidnapping, rape and armed robbery charges, Griffin sentenced Garcia to 20 years for each offense and ordered the sentences run concurrently.

A ten year sentence for burglary was ordered to be served consecutively.

Garcia was accused of raping a teenage girl Nov. 27, 1981 after he accepted a ride from the girl and her boyfriend while hitchhiking.

Garcia held the couple at gun point during the incident, tied up the male, raped the girl and also stole $12.

Later that evening he was apprehended by the Hancock County Sheriff's Department when he was caught by Bruce Asher while attempting to burglarize the Asher residence at Rte. 2, Box 274 in Bay St. Louis.

The contest sponsored by the Bay-Waveland Garden Club is open to

Candidates hedge pushing for voter reregistration

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

All candidates running for Hancock County circuit clerk favor reregistration of voters, but at a Monday night political forum hedged saying they would push for such action.

The six candidates seeking the county post answered various questions at the political forum sponsored by the Hancock County Republican Committee at the Courthouse in Bay St. Louis.

About 25 people attended the event. During a recent Hancock County Circuit Court term, Place Two Circuit Judge J. Ruble Griffin suggested the voter roles be purged because many summoned for jury duty failed to appear.

Griffin ordered an investigation by the County Sheriff's Department which revealed many of the voters had moved from the county.

Prospective jurors are apparently randomly selected from voter rolls.

The six candidates will vie in a Tuesday special election called by the County Election Commission to fill the circuit clerk post vacated by Henry Otis after he pled guilty to a misdemeanor charge of failing to keep appropriate records.

Candidates Jerry Heitzmann of Bay St. Louis and Gloria Tartavouille of Waveland both said the Hancock Board of Supervisors would have to authorize reregistration.

Heitzmann reported he favored reregistration if the supervisors desired such a move.

Tartavouille noted Circuit Court judges have suggested a reregistration, but no action has been taken. She added the supervisors must initiate reregistration.

Candidate Billy Ray Dedeaux of the Dedeaux Community said he favored reregistration.

Robert Boudin of Bay St. Louis, a candidate, reported computerization of

$2.5 million expansions to hike Bay utility rates

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

Planned Bay St. Louis water and sewage system expansion projects totalling more than $2.5 million will eventually cause a customer utility rate increase in the city.

The Bay City Council Tuesday night approved a final application prepared by Lewis-Eaton Partnership of Jackson for a Farmers Home Administration loan and authorized Mayor Larry Bennett to submit the application.

After meeting for at least 20 minutes in an unannounced closed meeting with City Attorney Joseph Gex and Attorney Walter Phillips, the council opened the session to the public at 7:20 p.m. The meeting was scheduled to begin at 7 p.m.

Regarding the secret session, Harry Farve, council president, stated, "We had some discussion we had to get over."

In the utility projects, city services will be provided to portions of the annexed area of the city and Bay Cove Marina—a land development project now under construction.

A group consisting of annexed area residents recently filed a $200 million class-action suit against the city because of a lack of legally promised city services.

Bill Gibson, a Bay attorney representing the group, was unavailable for comment Wednesday regarding any affect the city's action might have on the suit.

The $150,000 water project will install a water system for residents on Lincoln, Buick and Mercury Streets and Cadillac Drive, City Clerk Edward

VA students now eligible for grant

Students who receive Veterans Administration benefits are now eligible for a Pell Grant (formerly Basic Grant) says Vernetta Fairley, director of financial aid at Pearl River Junior College in Poplarville.

In October, Congress changed the law that prohibited VA students from being eligible to receive the federal grant, Fairley notes.

The 1982-83 Pell Grant payment schedule distributed to institutions in late August was based on the previous funding level of $2.2 million. Therefore, payments made under this previous schedule must be adjusted, Fairley says.

There are some differences. Students who receive Social Security benefits; 100 percent of their payments are used in determining eligibility for a Pell Grant, but only 33 percent of the VA payments to students are used," the financial director explains.

Fairley says it is unfair so much is taken for Pell Grant on Social Security and less for VA. One-third of the Veterans educational benefits are to be considered in determining the student award.

The Department of Education recently mailed letters to all students with an eligible Student Aid Index, who reported Veterans' benefits, notifying them of a possible change in their award amounts and directing them to contact their financial aid administrators.

The Financial Aid office at Pearl River College is located in the rear of the Administration Building. Office hours are from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Bits 'n pieces

On Sunday evening at 6 p.m. the National Broadcasting Company, (WDSU, Channel 6), will air a documentary which will feature Bay St. Louis resident J.C. Baxter.

As many of you know, Baxter—on whom we did a feature story in March of 1980—is one of the survivors of the Bataan march, having served 3.5 years as a Japanese POW.

The documentary will feature Baxter's incredible story of human survival in addition to others told by American servicemen during the hour-long prime time special.

We hope residents of the area will tune-in on this special.

We have heard many times, the expression 'War is hell', and this may be a good time for persons who object to young people registering to find out what it is really about.

We have interviewed Baxter at length, we have told his story, just as we have told about Fred Curet's capture and imprisonment at Corregidor, Mr. and Mrs. William Sander's experiences during the bombing of Pearl Harbor.

People like Baxter cannot be honored enough for the personal sacrifices they have given so we can have the Freedoms of America.

We know high school football has been over for a spell, but, now basketball is into high gear.

Many basketball fans have been enjoying very competitive games in recent weeks.

There is a need for more spectators in the stands, so if you get a chance, you may want to attend some of the high school basketball games.

COUNTY CHRISTMAS TREE — Members of the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce who visited Santa's Forest this week for a Christmas tree were, from right, L.J. Breaux, president; Charles Gustin, executive director; Pat Harvill, director, and Herbert deBuys. The tree was donated to Hancock County by deBuys, owner of Santa's Forest, who at left starts chain saw to cut tree. The tree which has been placed at the Hancock County Courthouse in Bay St. Louis will be officially lit on Sunday evening at 4:30. Santa will arrive and have candy for the kiddies for the event sponsored by the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce. Breaux said, "Since this is a County Christmas Tree, this year we would like for a member of each family to place an outside ornament on the tree between now and Christmas." ## The Bottom Line

Candid Answers To Your Questions About Advertising and Business Topics.

By S. GALE DENLEY
Associate Professor of Journalism

It looks like we are going to have a lot of Christmas goods left on the shelf after the big day. When should we announce our "After Christmas Sale"? We Over Ordered This Year.

Dear WOOTY: I don't know how you could possibly know at this time that you overordered, but taking your word for that let's proceed to the question as you posed it.

I assume you will be giving some good discounts after Christmas.

Therefore, it would be prudent for your customers to wait until then to buy the merchandise. But unfortunately for most of them, this is not possible for they must purchase gift items prior to Christmas day.

First, let's look at what this really means to you in terms of customer relations. You are requiring those who must purchase now to pay a much higher price than those who can wait a day or so longer.

Even those who can afford the higher price will no doubt resent having to pay it.

Then, let's look at the situation in terms of what it means to you and your overall profits.

If you start the sale right now, today, during the first week in December, what would it mean?

First, you could use a lower mark down and still get better results than you will after Christmas. For, obviously, there is an increasingly greater demand now than then, will be later, regardless of price.

Secondly, you will bring new people in your store. And they will be there to Christmas shop, rather than pick over already picked over bargains. You will get increased sales all over the store, and not just of the advertised specials.

Thirdly, you will be able to give some real bargains after Christmas. Your expenses will be more than made on the merchandise in the pre-Christmas sale, and you can really move it after Christmas for what it is—picked over and left over goods.

Fourth, you will build new loyalties with old customers who will appreciate the before Christmas savings.

As we have noted before, it is good business to promote sales while demand is high. If you sit back and wait for the customers to come they will be in smaller and smaller numbers.

In today's mobile society there is no such thing as a captive audience. As some cowboy or someone once put it, "Strike while the iron is hot," whatever that might mean.

Local, state groups urge telephone-mail support for governor's programs in Session

Nov. 29, 1982

Dear Editor:

Governor Winter has called a Special Session of the Legislature to deal with the improvement of education in our state. The session will begin Dec. 6 and will probably be less than two weeks in duration.

The Governor wants the Legislature to adopt three crucial bills: The Mississippi Education Reform Act of 1982; a bill to increase the oil and gas severance tax by 3%; and an appropriations bill.

The Mississippi Education Reform Act contains most of the recommendations made by the State Research Associates as a result of their comprehensive study of our state's public education system including compulsory school attendance, provisions for preschool, and choice between kindergartens and reading aides initially, but with kindergartens and reading aides through the first three grades by 1987; increased teachers' salaries; new standards for school accreditation; and necessary changes to give the new State Board of Education authority and flexibility to provide direction to the State Department of Education and local school systems.

Although it is almost certain that

Governor Winter would consider an alternate source of funding should such be proposed by the Legislature, he believes that the best and most equitable source of revenue would be an increase in oil and gas severance tax.

This belief is based on the fact that oil and gas are not renewable resources, that significant profits are made from oil and gas production, and that the severance tax — unlike all other Mississippi taxes — has not been increased since 1944.

The Mississippi Congress of Parents and Teachers urges each Mississippian to support the Governor's program.

Echo sets the record straight on the powerline story

November 29, 1982

Dear Editor:

Thank you for your front page articles of Sunday, Nov. 21 and Thursday, Nov. 25 covering the "power line appeal."

A clarification of the report made by the wire service and Channel 13 was surely needed.

Since there was no reporter in the judge's chamber where the appeal was heard, one must wonder how and why it received such wide spread coverage — misleading as it was!

You have rendered a real service to your readers by being the first to set the record straight!

Let me reaffirm that SMROD's appeal challenging the Public Service Commission's decision of last July is yet to be heard. We can look forward to that in January.

Q: What steps must a public housing project take to evict a tenant who has not paid his rent?

A: To evict a tenant for non-payment of rent, the law requires that a public housing project must give a tenant fourteen days written notice, stating that the tenant's rent is overdue and must be paid.

The notice must also state that the tenant is entitled to a grievance hearing on the question of overdue rent.

If the tenant requests a hearing, the housing authority must provide a hearing and notify the tenant of the results of the hearing prior to beginning any eviction proceedings.

Q: Can a public housing tenant who is current in his rental payments be removed by a housing authority?

Although a private landlord can terminate a tenancy at the end of a lease or by giving proper notice, a public housing authority cannot terminate a tenancy unless good cause exists for the termination. A tenant can be evicted only if he has violated an important provision of the lease.

In order to remove a tenant for violation of a lease, the public hearing authority must give the tenant thirty days notice, in writing, stating the reasons for termination of the tenancy. In addition, the notice must inform the tenant that he is entitled to a grievance hearing to determine whether he has violated the lease.

Extension Service views pros, cons of kerosene heaters

Kerosene heaters are making a big comeback as sources of extra heat for homeowners. Their renewed popularity can probably be tied to some actual and some apparent advantages mentioned in national advertising.

Advantages which could be placed in an "actual" category include: the portability of kerosene heaters—they can be carried from room to room and used directly where they're needed; and the adaptability of the heaters—they can provide heat in power outages and in buildings with no other source of heat.

Advantages which could be listed in the "apparent" category include cost of fuel, heat output, and safe operation. The most critical of these three claimed advantages is safe operation. Information available from studies done by state and federal agencies and testing done by the Consumers' Union and reported in "Consumer Reports" indicates that questions about the relative safety of invented portable kerosene heaters may outweigh the claims of manufacturers.

"Safety-related" questions about the heaters are generally to two kinds: how safe is an unvented, portable kerosene heater to operate with regard to preventing house fires; and how safe is the air in the living space heated by invented, portable heaters?

Most everyone agrees that the new versions of kerosene heaters are less likely to cause fires than earlier versions. New models have tip-over switches that are supposed to snuff out the flame if the heater is tipped over or bumped hard. They have fuel tanks built to help prevent leaks and spills. Generally, the new models are bottom-heavy so they don't tip over easily.

"But as a class, kerosene heaters still present hazards not found in modern electric heaters," says a report on kerosene heater testing in the October "Consumer Reports" magazine. Hazards cited by the magazine include "danger of fire if the heater is upset, filled with gasoline (or some other unacceptable fuel), or carelessly refueled; danger of storing volatile liquid in or near living quarters; and dangerous levels of air pollutants—nitrogen dioxide, sulfur dioxide, and other toxic gases" in living areas where the heaters are used.

"Generally, risks of burns or fire from the use of modern kerosene heaters are risks caused by careless use," the "Consumer Reports" article says. "But even the most careful owner can't readily escape the noxious gases given off by the heater's flame."

Testing done on 18 heaters by Consumers' Union labs showed that all kerosene heaters without chimneys produced carbon monoxide, carbon dioxide, nitrogen dioxide, and sulfur dioxide gases. Tests were done in a 10-foot by 12-foot by eight-foot high room that ended up with "levels of each gas...high enough to be a serious health hazard to high-risk groups." The high-risk groups listed included pregnant women, asthmatics, people with cardiovascular disease, children, and the elderly. "Levels calculated for some pollutants may pose risks for healthy individuals," the "Consumer Reports" article said.

The tests indicated that although the levels of pollutants referred to in advertisements seem low, they are well above allowable levels of pollutants for outdoor air defined by the Environmental Protection Agency. For example, the EPA says the maximum permissible level for carbon dioxide outdoors is 9 parts per million.

The National Kerosene Heater Association boasts that its heaters produce only 0.002 percent carbon monoxide, "Consumer Reports" says, but that's 20 parts per million—more than twice the "allowable" EPA level. Sulfur dioxide levels are worse. The kerosene heaters in the tests produced up to 1.6 parts per million of sulfur dioxide in the test room. That's 11 times higher than the allowable EPA limit of 0.14 parts per million, the consumers' group says.

State and federal agencies working with heating and cooling costs have determined that most of the savings that can be produced by using portable heaters of any variety come from turning the thermostat on the central heating system down several degrees. A much lower percentage of the savings from portable heat sources comes from the type of energy used.

A comparison of fuel costs per unit of heat produced has been worked up by Dr. Jack Carroll, coordinator for the Mississippi Energy Extension Center. Here it is:

Electricity @ 6 cents/KWH = $17.50/million BTU's
Kerosene @ $1.50/gal. = $12.50/million BTU's
Propane @ .90/gal. = $9.00/million BTU's
Natural Gas @ $.50/MCF = 5.00/million BTU's

The comparison indicates that kerosene heaters would be less expensive to operate than electrical heaters. Kerosene heaters cost two to three times as much to buy, however, and national figures show that the cost for good, low-sulfur kerosene may be closer to $2.50 to $4 per gallon in the near future.

Anyone considering buying a kerosene heater for regular use in his or her home should read information available in "Consumer Reports" and other magazines, and heating/cooling related publications before deciding to buy. Public libraries are good sources for information. If a consumer decides to buy a kerosene heater, he or she should follow instructions for its safe use carefully and provide a source of fresh air for the heater and the home's occupants by opening a door or window in the room where the heater is in use. The introduction of outside air into the living area will reduce the heater's efficiency but will lower toxic gas levels.

Foundation president urges prison reforms

By BARBARA RENE
DAVIS
USM Public Relations
Staff Writer

"We're hearing on all sides that we need more prisons to put people away for a long time...our prisons are not working. There are alternatives," said John Coleman, guest speaker at a recent University of Southern Mississippi Honors Forum in Hattiesburg.

As president of the Edna McConnell-Clark Foundation in New York City, Coleman is concerned with improving conditions for prisoners and suggesting other ways of dealing with non-violent offenders. The Prisoner Defense League in this state is partly funded by the Foundation.

Coleman has spent the last five years doing more than thinking and reading about prison conditions. He has been an inmate in five different prisons across the United States and has gone undercover as a prison guard two times to try and find out more about prison life than is shown on the news or in movies, he said.

"People in prisons have offended our values, so we spend little time thinking about it (prison reform)," Coleman said.

Many people think imprisonment is the answer to the high crime rate, the victims' restitution, reform for prisoners and punishment for crimes, Coleman disagrees.

least as far as the non-violent offenders are concerned.

"I submit there is no evidence that a heavy use of incarceration will reduce crime," he said.

When a prisoner is locked up, the public is protected from that particular criminal, but that is all. The problem of other crimes and other offenders must be dealt with, said Coleman.

As far as the victims are concerned, Coleman believes they would fare better if the offender could make restitution. But, "there is no way of providing restitution for someone who has been raped," he said.

What can be done to reform criminals? "Probably very little, and what little we can do does not involve prisons," he believes. Long sentences for non-violent offenders are not necessary for reform. Individual attention is the best approach for reforming someone, but this cannot be accomplished in overcrowded conditions, Coleman said.

Punishment for non-violent offenders currently is made up of two choices, probation with hardly no supervision or prison.

"Mississippi is not thought of as having the best of all possible corrections systems," he said. But there are some good programs in this state, such as community restitution, where a prisoner does restitution by aiding the community in some way, drug and alcoholic treatment and weekend restitution, which enables an offender to keep his or her job.

Coleman said his best argument for changing the corrections practices in the United States is the state of the economy. There should not be more prisons built for the purpose of housing non-violent offenders, he said.

IN CONGRESS

By Cong.
Trent Lott

LOTT DEDICATES
CENTER TO AID
SMALL BUSINESS

A "natural partnership" between Mississippi's small businesses and the state's educational system can help reduce the risk of starting a new business, according to Congressman Trent Lott, R-Miss.

Lott, speaking at dedication of the Mississippi Small Business Development Center in Long Beach, also cited recent congressional actions designed to assist America's small business men and women.

"Small business is as much a part of America's future as it is of America's past," Lott said. "Though no group is insulated from hard economic times, we can work to reduce the risk associated with starting a business and keeping it going."

"That's the bottom line on this center's purpose," he said.

The center was opened to serve counties in the southern part of Mississippi where any business man or woman may seek assistance. The program features the use of graduate business students to help provide the assistance. In return, the students receive training in an on-the-job atmosphere.

"Education and business form a natural partnership, one which I have every reason to expect will be mutually beneficial," Lott said.

Lott, the House Republican Whip, said small business is an integral part of America's heritage. Most of the incentives in the 1981 tax bill, for example, were geared to helping the nation's small businesses recover.

Christmas caution helps prevent fire tragedy

The holiday season is potentially a very dangerous one. Precautions against fire and adherence to general safety rules are of the utmost importance, when Christmas preparations are being made, reminds the Mississippi State Medical Association.

Fire is the greatest single contributor to Christmas tragedy. The dangers of fire in the home are compounded during the holidays due to the presence of trees, trimmings, lights, candles, and paper decorations which would not normally be in the home.

The primary causes of home fires during Christmas are lighted candles, fireplaces, trees which become too dry, and faulty electrical connections. Common sense and adherence to a few basic safety rules can drastically reduce the number of home fires. The following guidelines should be used to assure a safe and Merry Christmas:

*Make an emergency plan to use if fire breaks out.

*Have telephone numbers of fire and emergency squads handy.

*Keep matches, lighters, and candles out of the reach of children.

*Never burn candles near evergreens or in drafts from open windows, heating or air conditioning systems.

*Never burn candles in the middle of dried-flower arrangements, cut pine, balsam or holly.

*Never burn evergreens in a fireplace, as dry greens burn like tinder and can flare out of control, sending sparks flying about the room.

Special precautions should also be taken with the Christmas tree because chemical coatings or sprays cannot be relied upon to flame-proof it. A fresh tree will stay green longer and be less of a fire hazard than a dry one. A fresh tree is green.

Its needles are hard to pull from its branches and do not break when bent between your fingers, its trunk is sticky with resin, and a shower of needles does not fall to the ground when it is shaken.

The tree should be placed away from fireplaces, radiators, and other heat sources. It should also be out of the way of traffic and not block any doorways.

The tree, after two inches of its trunk is removed, should be mounted in a sturdy, water-holding stand with wide-spread legs and fastened to the walls or ceiling with thin guy wires which will be nearly invisible. The base should be kept full of water while the tree is indoors because heated rooms dry trees out rapidly, creating fire hazards.

Billiot

lunacy hearing, stated during the trial Wednesday that he thought the hearing was predicated on Billiot's use of drugs, especially LSD.

"Somewhere along the line I think it was all related to drugs," Gex said. Paul Kostellie, a jailer at the Gulfport Jail where Billiot has been confined, also testified for the defense. He stated Billiot referred to himself as Hitler one time and Romeo Machiavelli at another time.

In addition, Kostellie stated Billiot said he was born in 1885 in Israel "with no explanation to go with this."

Billiot was also concerned with werewolves and thought Aug. 7, was "a hot date for them," Kostellie said.

"He said one time he had been molested by them and he was afraid it was going to happen again," the jailer added.

Rock music and its influence on teenagers also concerned Billiot, Kostellie said.

Necaise questioned whether Kostellie felt that that behavior was bizarre and Kostellie said "no."

Earlier in the day, Necaise and Assistant District Attorney Scherry LeSieur rested their case for the state after having called 15 witnesses.

All the witnesses who knew Billiot prior to the killings who were questioned by Necaise concerning their opinion of his sanity claimed Billiot acted normal prior to the slayings.

SECOND DAY

During the second day of trial Tuesday, Leo Jones, 21, of Picayune and formerly of Leetown, testified he gave Billiot a ride last Thanksgiving day to a house on Leetown Road which was near the Croll residence.

Jones said he talked to Billiot several minutes during the ten minute ride.

"He was acting normal to me," Jones said.

"Just like you and me talking now," he added.

Jones said Billiot insisted on being let out of the vehicle at the house on Leetown Road which was separated from the Croll residence on Bud Lee Road by a field which would take some two minutes to walk across.

As Billiot left the vehicle, Jones said the defendant stated, "I've got some shooting to do," and Jones motioned with his hand as if it were a gun. An action he stated Billiot made.

Steven Croll, 13, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Croll who was 12 at the time of the murders, testified he had spent the night at the Hebbler residence on the eve of Thanksgiving.

The Croll's and the Hebbler family had planned to eat together on Thanksgiving Day.

Early Thanksgiving Day, Croll said, George Hebbler gave him and Chris Lee, a friend, a ride to TG&Y in Picayune to determine if they had won a raffle being conducted in the store that day.

On the way he said he spotted Billiot hitchhiking on the road.

On the way back from TG&Y, young Croll testified, he saw Billiot driving west on US-43 in the Croll's 1978 Chevrolet Impala.

Hebbler testified he also saw Billiot both times.

After spotting Billiot driving the Croll car, Hebbler testified, "I suspected something was wrong because Mr. Croll would never have allowed Jimmy (Billiot) to drive his car."

Croll said he went to the closest pay telephone and called the Croll residence. He received no answer and then called his wife to tell her he was going immediately to the Croll residence.

Upon arriving at the house, Steven Croll ran to the front door and discovered it was locked.

All three—Hebbler, Steven Croll and Chris Lee—went to the back door. Croll entered first, he said.

"The moment he (Steven) went in the house he came screaming out about his daddy," Hebbler said.

Hebbler stated he found the elder lying on the kitchen floor with an eight pound mail between his feet.

"I saw my next door neighbor lying in a pool of blood with his whole head smashed in, gasping," he said.

Audrey Croll was found with her head on the couch in the living room. Cheryl Croll was lying behind a chair near the front door, the witness stated.

"As far as I could tell they were both dead, but I could hear Jim (Mr. Croll) gasping," he said.

He noted other neighbors later tried to administer mouth to mouth resuscitation to Mr. Croll.

"It wasn't no use," Hebbler said.

Edrow Lee, another neighbor of the Croll's, and Lee's son Lawrence, also a neighbor, testified they heard Steven Croll running up the street screaming.

Both testified they went to the Croll residence and attempted to administer mouth to mouth resuscitation to Mr. Croll.

Hebbler, who had called for an ambulance and contacted the sheriff's department, left the house to flag down the ambulance, and direct it to the Croll's house.

Dr. Ed Rehack, pathologist at Gulf Coast Community Hospital in Biloxi, testified his autopsy of Mr. Croll revealed death was the result of "massive trauma almost completely in the area of the skull and brain."

Also testifying Tuesday was Hancock County Sheriff Ronald Peterson who recalled transporting Billiot back to Mississippi after Billiot was arrested in Louisiana.

Peterson testified Billiot said he watched the devil take a mall from a shed behind the Croll house and then kill the Croll family.

"I didn't kill them. The devil did it," Peterson said Billiot stated during the ride.

In addition, Peterson testified Billiot said that he took $50 from Mr. Croll's wallet and the keys to the Croll's car from Mrs. Croll's purse.

"I assumed he did that after the killings," Peterson said.

During the ride, Peterson said, Billiot claimed he was Romeo Machiavelli but told Investigator Delbert Seay that he could call Billiot "Al."

Pascal Saladino, homicide detective with the New Orleans Police Department, testified Billiot claimed he was both Romeo Machiavelli and Jesus Christ after he was arrested in New Orleans.

Helen and Brian Strickland of Leetown were also called to testify during the trial.

Brian Strickland, the son of Helen Strickland, testified Billiot told him some several weeks before the slayings that he was going to kill the Croll's.

Although Brian Strickland said he told his mother about Billiot's comment, he testified his mother told him not to worry about Billiot's statement.

Mrs. Strickland also testified she gave Billiot a ride some three months before the killings.

When questioned by Haas as to whether Billiot ever referred to himself as Jesus Christ, Mrs. Strickland said "yes" that he did mention it once, "but I dismissed it," she said.

When asked if Billiot had ever accused her of being possessed she said, "Yes, many times."

Haas then asked if she had ever been possessed and Mrs. Strickland said "yes" three years ago when her father died.

When asked to explain the sensation, Mrs. Strickland said she could not put it in words and stated, "It was sort of like a nervous breakdown."

FIRST DAY OF TRIAL

During the first day of trial on Monday, some 41 prospective jurors of a total 73 summoned were dismissed before a jury of 11 men and one woman was empaneled.

Favre noted just after the council meeting.

Ray Eaton of the partnership told the councilmen the $2.4 million sewerage project will serve the marina, a portion of the annexed area, those along the route of the new line and any future Cedar point developments.

He pointed out on a map that the line will extend from the marina near Felicity Street along Joes Bayou Road, Blue Meadow Road and US-90 to Seube Street and along that street and Old Spanish Trail to the city sewage oxidation pond.

In addition, sewage lines will be installed along portions of Turner, Bouslog and Eighth Streets south of US-90, Eaton also pointed out.

The engineer explained his firm calculated monthly water rates will increase a maximum of 50 cents per customer and sewerage rates will rise a maximum of $3.63 per customer.

He noted the calculations are based only on the present number of city utility customers which is 2,319.

FmHA will be asked to loan the city the entire amount for the water project at a 10.58 percent annual rate to be paid back during a 35-year period, Eaton said.

Bay St. Louis will pay FmHA at least $17,015 annually over that period, he reported.

Eaton explained FmHA would fund about $1.4 million of the sewerage project with two local banks providing $500,000 each.

He said the FmHA loan would be under the same terms as the water system loan.

Hancock Bank will provide its funds at a rate not exceeding 11.5 percent over a 17-year period and Merchants Bank and Trust Co. will provide the same amount at the same interest rate, but during a 12-year period, Favre explained.

Eaton said his firm's fee would be five percent of the total project cost.

The council also authorized Gex and attorney Robert Genin to finalize an agreement to join the Waveland Regional Wastewater District.

Bay St. Louis was recently notified no additional customers could utilize city sewerage until the city joins a wastewater district.

The city leaders previously agreed to join the district, but the Bay's conditional agreement was rejected by the District Board of Directors.

The council adjourned subject to call if the document is finalized before the official's regular meeting scheduled Tuesday night.

Hancock I-10 contract awarded to Alabama firm

Bob Joiner, Mississippi Southern District highway commissioner, reports Butts and Billingsley Construction Co. Inc., of Childersburg, Ala. this week was awarded a contract to reconstruct 11.7 miles of I-10 between the Hwy. 607 interchange and the Jordan River twin bridges in Hancock County at a contractual cost of $2,075,211.

Joiner says Butts and Billingsley was low bidder of eight contractors who submitted bids on the reconstruction project.

He reports the project will include recycling asphalt now on the roadway and overlaying the highway.

The contractual completion date is Oct. 1983, he adds.

Joiner also reports the State Highway Commission awarded a contract to Gregory Constructors, Inc. of Gulfport to build the Jackson County Welcome Center and rest area facilities adjacent to I-10 at a contractual cost of $2,346,346.

Gregory was the low bidder of 10 contractors submitting bids for the project, he notes.

Joiner says the center will be located between the Escatawpa River and the Franklin Creek on the north side of the interstate.

Joiner reports the new center will be identical to the Hancock County Welcome Center with a few minor changes.

Joiner adds he is happy to see the work get underway and is sure it will be helpful to the tourist industry on the Mississippi Gulf Coast.

Christmas tree lighting set for Sunday

By ELLIS CUEVAS
The Annual Hancock County Christmas Tree decorations will have a new twist this year according to L.J. Breaux, president of the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce.

Hancock County, Bay St. Louis and Waveland officials will officially turn on the lights on the Christmas Tree Sunday evening at 4:30 p.m.

Breaux on Wednesday said, "We would like to see the families of Hancock County participating by donating an outside ornament, preferably waterproof, and have a family member place it on the tree between now and Christmas at the Courthouse in Bay St. Louis."

The tree has been set up and lights placed on it this week by trustees in the jail under the direction of R.D. Ladner, jailer.

Breaux and several chamber directors selected a tree donated by Herbert deBuys, owner of Santa's Forest in northeast Hancock County.

Pat Harvill, special events chairman for the chamber, stated, "Santa will arrive on a Bay St. Louis Fire Truck and have candy for the kiddies. This will also be a good time for the children to make known their Christmas wishes to Santa."

Harvill reports the Bay High School band and the Bay Junior High chorus will entertain. Nathan Barber, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Bay St. Louis will give the invocation.

Harvill stated, "When the tree is removed after Christmas, the ornaments still in good condition will be collected and saved for next year's tree."

Candidates

voter rolls would improve those records.

Regarding jurors not appearing for duty, Boudin suggested imposing jail sentences on those who are delinquent.

Candidate James Odom of Bay St. Louis said he favored reregistration if a method was possible in which feeble senior citizens could register at home.

Francis Lee of the Leetown Community, another candidate, said all voters would have to reregister after county redistricting is finalized.

Lee, a member of the election commission for nine years, reported a voter roll purge 'is a hard thing to do' because the county could be sued.

He said a Mississippi county was recently sued after a judge ordered the voter rolls be purged.

"No judge can order someone off the voter rolls... The county election committee has the job to take people off the rolls," he stated.

John Ladner of Dedeaux, an election commissioner attending the event, said prospective jurors are selected by a three-person committee which he feels is not a proper system.

"They (the three-person committee) throw dice and pick out someone from the registration book," he stated.

The Republican committee several days prior to the meeting had submitted eight questions to the candidates which primarily seek the candidates views regarding the two-party system in Hancock.

Two of the questions and answers included:

—What are your viewpoints regarding the two-party system in Mississippi and the rights of each to have fair and equal consideration from the office of the circuit clerk?

Boudin, Dedeaux and Tartavouille all replied Democratic and Republican primaries should be conducted at the same time to insure equal treatment of the parties.

Odom and Lee both said they favored a two-party system.

Lee and Heltzmann both said the circuit clerk should treat each party equally and impartially.

In past elections, citizens in Hancock who chose to vote Republican have not been fairly and equally treated—either by paid poll workers and/or elected officials. They have often been harassed, intimidated and even prevented from freely exercising their voting rights. Can we expect anything different from you and your office if you are elected?

James Hester, Hancock Republican Committee chairman and moderator of the event, after reading the question stated, "This is a general question, but it is a fact."

Heltzmann, Boudin and Lee said they were not aware of any instances of harassment, but it should not be tolerated and the County Election Commission is responsible for correcting such problems.

Tartavouille reported the problems should have been corrected 'a long time ago' by the commission.

Dedeaux stated, "The commission should stress that no one be harassed. If elected, I will straighten the problem out."

Odom reported his wife was laughed at 10 years ago when she registered to vote and said she was a Republican.

He said the circuit clerk's office and the commission must operate according to state law.

Tourist to avoid discussing technical aspects of China

By JOE PILET
Henry L. Thomas, manager of the Coast Electric Power Association in Bay St. Louis, will present a slide-lecture program tonight, in the City-County Public Library in that city, touching on the highlights of his recent investigative tour of China's mainland. The program begins at 7:30 p.m.

Thomas was one of 37 persons selected from throughout the United States—the only one from Mississippi—invited for this technical study, concerned primarily with rural areas of that country.

"I will limit my discussion to the non-technical aspects of the trip," Thomas recently said, "and talk more about the resources, life style, and scenic beauty of China."

"I have read every book your library has to offer about China," Thomas said.

He added that a period of one year plus briefing sessions was spent in readying the group for the trip.

The route selected for the flight took off from Seattle with 21 hours of flight time prior to teaching destination Shanghai.

Although his group was well provided with interpreters, Thomas said the people of China are well educated with English as a second language.

Concerning the rural areas, Thomas said roads were very bad, telephones few and electrical and mechanical appliances and farm tools are non-existent.

"China has rich resources in manufactured goods such as silks and fine embroidery," Thomas said, "and there is very little crop land." He commented on the intensive use of arable land and said the farmers were vital to the economy and highly honored.

Impressed with the beauty of the countryside, the courtesy of the people, as well as their native intelligence, Thomas said he would confine his slide and talk program to about 20 minutes and leave some free time for a question and answer period.

Earlier in the program Darlene Underwood, extension economist for Hancock County will present a traditional 30-minute Christmas program.

"We try to keep our programs within a one-hour time allowance," explains Prima Wusnack, library director.

The purpose of the brief meeting is to allow a bit of free time for refreshments and friendly greetings among those in attendance.

Guests and students are welcome to attend all regular meetings of the Friends.

(Presented as a public service by the Mississippi State Medical Association and this newspaper.)

Santa Claus is coming soon. Children everywhere are waiting with eager anticipation to see the toys old St. Nick will leave under the tree.

Chances are that your youngsters will open their gifts Christmas morning and have a great time getting acquainted with their new toys. But in all too many households, the toys themselves will dim the happy Christmas season by causing accidents and injuries.

The Mississippi State Medical Association offers some simple tips for selecting toys that will help insure a completely happy Christmas.

Beware of small toys that can be swallowed, flammable toys, and toys with rough or sharp edges.

Avoid toys made of lead or colored with lead-based paints. You're unlikely to encounter these today, as the dangers of lead poisoning are now well known. But it's wise to be sure.

Baby's toys should be too large to put in the mouth, washable, lightweight and non-brittle.

Eye injuries are a particular hazard from some Christmas toys. Sling shots, air rifles, archery sets and even the spring-action toy pistols that propel sticks capped with rubber cups have caused injuries.

Make your money count for something. Buy U.S. Savings Bonds—where you work or bank. It's such a painless way to save.

Dracula's in residence at Waveland Civic Center

The Waveland Players have transformed the stage at the Waveland Civic Center into a chillingly realistic old castle, for the madcap monster of a melodrama with music by Tim Kelly, "Young Dracula, or the Singing Bat."

Directed by Ted Stechmann and produced by Terry Simpson, "Young Dracula" opens tomorrow night at 8 p.m. at the Civic Center on Coleman Avenue, repeating on Saturday at the same hour, and again the following weekend, Friday and Saturday, Dec. 10 and 11 at 8 p.m. and Sunday, Dec. 12 at 3 p.m.

Tickets are $3 and are available only at the door. Frank Gray shines in the title role, with the one and only Walter Vaughn as his Uncle, the Count.

Strong performances are delivered by all; and "Young Dracula" boasts a large cast.

Piccola Dietrich has outdone herself in the choreography of her Gypsy dancers and Jon Toller, the horrendous Hunchback. Their number promises to bring down the house.

Along with Piccola, the dancers are Frances Mitterer, Barbara Jo Filch, "Little" Piccola Dietrich, Nicola Dietrich, Judy Johnson, Michelle Dietrich, Nina Simpson, and Caroline Adam.

The action unfolds as a group of tourists (who are lost somewhere in Europe) stumble upon a castle under the leadership of their tour guide played by Susan Stevens, who never fails to entertain audiences with her acting and her lovely soprano voice.

The group consists of three confused and frightened couples, who interplay with one another as well as the various and sundry mysterious characters and creatures they encounter, including Ed Scanlan Jr. and Janet Alme, Ray and Rona, Jeanie and Bob Zeigler, as Melinda and Jerry; and John Helmers and Judith Gray as Keith and Lillian.

The action flows around them, as the hilarity and suspense keep building. The characters and creatures they encounter are Hansel Baxter as Moana (you won't believe your eyes!); Glenda Dean, who is outstanding as Sybil, a gypsy girl; Jeanie-Marie Bell is fantastic as Frau Wienerschnitzel; Russel Fitch is the howling Werewolf, and Jon Toller is the horrendous Hunchback.

And that's not all! There are also four adorable castle maids who sing their hearts out throughout the play: Elizabeth Hart, Barbara Pursley, Alla Mae Lambert, and Margo Frommeyer.

Piccola Dietrich and Danny Guilliams in cameo roles as gypsy villagers round out the cast.

Special mention must be made of the set design, music, and sound effects. Ed Scanlan Jr. has designed and built a fantastic set that definitely sets the mood; Ingrid Ling does a wonderful job at our temperamental piano; and Terry Simpson has the demanding job of coordinating thunder, lightning and other effects with the script.

Rounding out the credits are lighting by Pam Baumgartner; costumes by Ed Scanlan Jr.; makeup by Nan Bradley and Ed Scanlan Jr.; posters by Jeanie Zeigler; programs by Jeanie Zeigler, Meta Garside, and Ed Ling; publicity by Edith Bierhorst Back, Meta Garside, Jeanie-Marie Bell; tickets by Norma Simpson; and concessions by Ray Caldwell and Bubby Dietrich.

If you want thrills, chills, hilarity, song and dance, shrieks, laughs, etc., come on down to the Castle at the Waveland Civic Center.

Refreshments will be available to enjoy at the ever-popular seating arrangement around checkered, cloth-covered, long tables. Dress warmly!

Wood stove installation safety hints offered

Wood stove installation diagram

As the leaves fall and winter's cold chill draws closer by the day, many Americans are reminded — unpleasantly at that — of their large winter heating bills.

As a result, more and more people have turned to alternate forms of heating, but the price paid for savings on fuel bills has been a dramatic increase in the number of residential fires, injuries and deaths.

One of the most popular home heating alternatives is the woodburning stove. Invented by Benjamin Franklin back in the mid-1700s, wood stoves were cited last year as a direct cause in more than 22,000 fires and 800 deaths.

These figures are even more dramatic considering that fires and injuries caused by oil and gas heating units are steadily decreasing. In Oregon, for example, the state fire marshal's office reported that in 1981, 87 percent of all heating equipment fires were caused by woodburning stoves.

Despite the risks, scores of Americans are buying and installing woodburning stoves, primarily because they are effective in reducing heating bills. Per unit of heat, wood is less expensive than oil or gas.

And unlike a standard fireplace, which tends to heat the air above the outside chimney, wood stoves are much more efficient in heating rooms where they're located.

PROPER INSTALLATION. Some 60 percent of all woodburning stove fires are caused by faulty installation," says Donald Mann, senior fire protection specialist in Aetna Life & Casualty's Engineering Division.

"Most people who buy wood stoves are looking to save money on their heating bills, and they don't see the need to pay an expert to come out and install what looks like a simple operation. The cold, hard truth is that people don't realize what they're getting themselves into," he explains. Mann says one essential precaution is to have a chimney examined by an expert for cracks, loose masonry and other defects, before installing a wood stove.

If connecting a store-bought chimney, be sure it has recognized testing laboratory label.

If connecting the stove to an existing fireplace, seal off the chimney below the stove's pipe entry. This will prevent toxic gases from backing up into the room.

Mann said that it is dangerous to connect more than one heating device to a single flue.

Stove owners should follow detailed instructions to be sure that the stove pipe's dimensions and materials are adequate for installation.

Ordinarily, Mann explained, the pipe should not pass through a wall or ceiling.

As for hooking a stove pipe to masonry chimney, extend the connector through the masonry wall of the chimney to the inner face of the flue liner—but not beyond, and cement it to the masonry with high temperature cement.

Additional tips for stove connections and placement include:

—Connect the stove pipe as close and straight as possible to the chimney, with connections properly secured.

—If the pipe must have curves, limit them to one or two elbows.

—If you are going to make the connection through a combustible wall, the pipe must pass through a thimble or collar that will maintain at least an 18-inch clearance.

—Make sure there is enough clearance between the stove and the floor, ceiling and walls.

—Place the stove on a fireproof base, preferably made of brick, masonry or concrete, at least two inches thick.

—Too large a unit is dangerous, so make sure you purchase one that fits your room's heating needs.

—Don't place any bookshelves, or other combustible objects near the stove.

Mann says a good idea prior to using your stove is to have it checked by a fire marshal or building inspector to make sure it meets any city or town ordinances for solid fuel heating units.

USING A STOVE

Never start a fire with flammable fluids like gasoline, kerosene or lighter fluid. Instead, put crumpled newspapers under kindling wood. Once that fire has started, larger logs can be placed in the stove, Mann recommends.

"Even if people install them properly, wood stoves are still a fire hazard," Mann says. "Unsafe chimneys, inadequate clearances from combustible items, toxic gas backups, improper ventilation—all can cause fires and injuries."

Troubles involving wood stoves usually start in the chimney.

"Chimney fires are very common because most people don't keep their chimneys clean," he adds.

"The best thing to do when a chimney fire strikes is to call the fire department first, then close the stove's doors and the damper in the stove pipe. Never throw water on the stove, because that could cause the stove to crack and start a second fire," Mann explained.

Chimney fires start from a build up of creosote—a thick, black, sticky residue—which ignites by the heat of the fire. Creosote forms from partially burned combustible material, such as newspapers, trash or wood that hasn't been properly seasoned.

To avoid a dangerous buildup of creosote in a chimney, have it cleaned at least once a year.

Mann also suggested it is wise to "burn a stove hot once a day, for a few minutes." But, don't make this the first fire of the day because a hot fire started in a cold stove could cause cracking. Using the correct wood is another sensible practice that is often overlooked by the wood stove novice. Well seasoned hardwoods like ironwood, apple, red oak, sugar maple are the most heat efficient and least likely to produce creosote.

SAFE, SENSIBLE. Mann said it's a good idea for parents to take extra safety precautions, such as placing a barrier around the stove when children are in the house. "Wood stoves don't look hot to children," he said, "so they need continuous reminders not to go near the stove."

Installed and used correctly, woodburning stoves are an effective way to reduce fuel bills as well as supplying comfort and warmth for many a winter to come.

Coast netters win in Pensacola

Bay St. Louis, Pass Christian, and Diamondhead netters participated in the annual Oyster Love Tennis Tournament at I.G. Levy Park in Pascagoula recently.

In the biggest upset of the day, Elizabeth Watts of Bay St. Louis teamed up with Doris Scarborough of Pass Christian to defeat the top seeded team of Victoria Todd and Betty Roche of Biloxi, 6-2, 3-6, 6-4, and win the women's 35 and over division.

In the finals of the women's 30 and over division, top seeded Ann Heitzmann of Bay St. Louis defeated Carol Binns of Pascagoula, 6-1, 6-2.

Heitzmann then teamed with Mary McDonnell of Diamondhead to capture the women's 30 and over doubles by defeating Rita Leisure and Anna Martin of Ocean Springs, 6-1, 6-3.

In the Women's Open division consolation round Michelle Brown of Pass Christian won the finals defeating Lea Ann Atkins of Hattiesburg, 7-5, 6-2.

Boxing's 'little men' to war on Coliseum's big screen

The big men in boxing, for almost 100 years, held claim to the biggest gates and the biggest purses.

The first world championship fight in history was held in Mississippi City in 1882.

Fans came to the Gulf Coast by wagon, boats and sternal-wheelers to see who would wear the crown of "World Champion."

John L. Sullivan knocked Paddy Ryan out in the eighth round on the front lawn of the Burns Hotel. The fans watched the history-making event from the decks of the sternal-wheelers, the porches of the hotel and chairs on the lawn.

In the 30's Jack Dempsey drew large crowds wherever he fought. Once in Shelby, Montana, the visiting fans outnumbered the population of that town to watch Dempsey defend his crown against Jess Willard.

In the 40's, boxing enthusiasts traveled by auto and train from all corners of the United States to Madison Square Garden in New York to watch Joe Louis defend his title against such fighters as Max Schmeling, Max Baer, Joe Walcott, Billy Conn, and the rest of the record 25 defenses of his heavyweight title.

Then came Rocky Marciano, who retired undefeated as champion. Every one of his title defenses were sell outs.

Cassius Clay, better known as Muhammed Ali, came along with worldwide television to draw the biggest gates in history.

In June, 1962, Larry Holmes and Gerry Cooney fought for more money than the combined players pool of the World Series and Super Bowl.

There were some classic matchups among the lighter weights, such as Sugar Ray Robinson-Carmen Basilio; Robinson-LaMotta; Robinson-Graziano.

But not until Sugar Ray Leonard came on to the scene, following his gold medal performance in the 1976 Olympics, has the "little man" made the big pay days in boxing.

On Dec. 3, two of the modern day welterweights, who combine punching power with excellent boxing will meet in the Superdome for the Super Welterweight championship. Wilfredo Benitez, who at 17 became the youngest fighter to win a world's championship. He is also the youngest fighter in history to hold three world titles. The flashy Puerto Rican who was born in the Bronx, won the Junior Welterweight title at 16. He captured the Welterweight title at 19, and then took the Super Welterweight championship when he was 23, a title he still holds.

Thomas Hearns, the former Welterweight Champion will meet Benitez in his quest for the Super Welterweight title. Hearns is also a former Welterweight king.

Ironically, these two batters lost their version of the Welterweight championship to the same man, Sugar Ray Leonard. This is the only loss in either fighters record.

This fight figures to be a classic battle between two seasoned and successful fighters.

Hearns sports a 35-1-0 record with 32 knockouts. Benitez is 43-1-1, with 26 knockouts.

On the same card Wilfredo Gomez will defend his World Super Bantamweight title against Lupe Pintor, the World Bantamweight champion.

Gomez, who was 26 on Oct. 26, will be making his unprecedented 17th defense of his crown that he won on May 21, 1977, when he knocked out Yun Dong-Kyun in the 12th round. All his defenses were accomplished by knockout, also a record. In fact, with the exception of his pro debut in 1974 which ended in a draw, and his loss to Salvador Sanchez in a quest for the featherweight title, all of Gomez's victories have been by K.O. Gomez has won 36 of 38 fights, all by knockout, with the one loss and the draw.

Pintor, who successfully defended his bantamweight title eight times, is 27-years-old. The 118-pounder is one of the most popular fighters to come out of Mexico. In one stretch between 1976 and 1978, he had 15 straight knockouts. He is an exciting fighter with a perpetual motion style. He has won 49 of 55 fights, with 38 knockouts, 5 losses and one draw.

This matchup figures to be a real war between two of the most successful "little men" in the fight game.

The bouts, which will also feature Steve McCrory against a yet-unnamed opponent, will begin at 8 p.m. and will be shown live on the big screen in the Coast Coliseum, Friday, Dec. 3.

All seats will be reserved. Floor seats are $21, Terrace and Balcony are $16.

Tickets are available at the Coliseum box office and Loicano's Health Club, Bay St. Louis.

Mississippi Marathon to be run Saturday

The seventh annual Mississippi Marathon will be run Saturday beginning at 8 a.m. in front of the Governor's Mansion in downtown Jackson.

Approximately 400 runners are expected for the 26.2 mile race.

The course, which is certified by The Athletics Congress, was moved to Jackson from Clinton last year. Jeff Keady of Ruston, La. led the field of 284 finishers in 1981 with a course record 2:28:20.

Deborah Ethridge of Jackson won the women's division in 3:11:34.

Jeff Galloway, 72 Olympian in the marathon, will address a pre-race clinic Friday evening in the Delta Room of the Holiday Inn Downtown. A pasta party has also been planned for the evening.

Awards will be presented to the first five men and women finishers, and to the first five men and first three women age 40 and older. Age group awards will be presented to the top five in each division. Rodney Kendrick of Terry will be competing in the wheelchair division.

Runners will not be allowed to register on race day, but may sign up Friday evening between 5 and 8 p.m. in the second floor lobby of the Holiday Inn Downtown. The course begins on Capital Street, loops through downtown Jackson, runs north to Meadowbrook, south to Lakeland, east to McFadden Road, south through Flowood, then back to Jackson via Highway 80 and State Street.

Aid stations with water and Swinger will be available at the start and finish, and every three miles along the course. Lapsed times will be given at miles 1, 5, 10, 15, 20 and 25. Refreshments will be provided for runners in Smith Park following the run.

The average temperature for Dec. 4 in Jackson is 51 degrees. The normal low is 39 degrees and the normal high is 63 degrees.

The 7th Annual Mississippi Marathon is being sponsored by First National Bank of Jackson, and is being directed by the Mississippi Track Club. This year's event is endorsed by the Governor's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports.

Speaking Of Sports

More than a sports problem

By MIKE WALDNER
Copley News Service

LOS ANGELES—Some readers are of the opinion that those citizens who toil in the sports section should limit their efforts to recording the scores, standings and other such salient information.

It is the feeling of these would-be editors that crime news belongs in the first section, along with reports from the court houses, and that money matters should be confined to the financial section.

You are correct if you already have figured out that coaches, managers and a number of athletes hold such truths to be self-evident.

A higher percentage of reporters agree with them than they would even imagine.

Why then, you might wonder, do you pick up your sports section and find so many stories in which there is no score?

The reason, other than the simple fact that these stories have to go some place, is the interlocking nature of events. These non-sports events involving athletes often have a direct impact on the scores and standings and such. The athlete who is holding out is not helping his team win. In fact, he may be helping it lose. The athlete who is unable to perform because of drugs certainly is not helping his team.

This point was made the other day during separate discussions with Bill Bergey and Walter Payton. Bergey, the former Philadelphia linebacker, and Payton, the great running back from Chicago, were in Las Vegas for a celebrity sports tennis tournament.

As amazing as it may sound, the correspondent was less interested in the state of their tennis game than he was in their thoughts on the use of cocaine in the National Football League. This stems, of course, from what has become an ongoing dialogue between the press and players, coaches and management since Sports Illustrated magazine published an explosive story by Don Reese, a former linebacker, on how cocaine "controls and corrupts" in the NFL.

"It's a bum rap," Bergey said. "It really is. In fact, the Reese story is smut. It's blown out of proportion. It's like a California junk magazine."

If this gives you the impression he isn't too happy with Reese's disclosure, you're correct. His words are typical of the reaction of most football people. They are defensive to such an extreme that they go on the offensive.

Bergey, however, is an intelligent man. And apparently, an honest man. He's not prepared to tell us the world is flat or the moon is made of cheese.

"There is a problem," he admitted. There is a problem in the NFL, just as there is a problem in society with the use of drugs.

"You see it outside of football," Payton said. "It's not just a football problem, it's a problem of people."

It is said cocaine is primarily a problem for those who have the money, those who can afford the costly substance. This is where athletes come into the picture. They've got the money.

"I would not say that because the athletes have the money they buy it," Payton said. "I've got the money and I do not buy it. Also, a lot of guys in football really can't afford it."

He has his thoughts on why someone in the NFL, someone who depends on his body for his income, would mess with cocaine.

"It's a status symbol," he said, again echoing what has been said about why people in other areas of society are into the drug. "The guys want to be with the big wheels, the honchos, the people with money."

While the point always is made that athletes are examples for youth, this appears to be a case of the athletes just going along with society.

"You can find it anywhere you go," Bergey said with a shrug. "I'm just old enough that it went by me. I'm glad, because I feel sorry for those who do. It's wrong."

As fathers, it is understandable that both athletes are more interested in their children than anything else.

Payton said, "It starts at home. That's the problem. Children should look up to their father and mother; they should have a strong family image; they should be able to resist pressures by their friends."

Bergey said, "I just hope I give my three sons enough love so that they do not have to search for something else."

That's really the score.

Venison high in protein, low in calories

A deer hunter who may be running out of justification for all the expense involved in bringing home a trophy buck may want to pick up some information provided by Dr. Ross Shelton.

Shelton, who is a wildlife specialist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service, has a calorie count for venison that might be hard to turn down in these days when most people like to keep an eye on calories.

Shelton said venison and other wild game generally contain fewer calories, more protein and minerals than equivalent store-bought meats.

Shelton said venison contains 42 grams of protein per ounce while an equal portion of beef has only 37 grams of protein and pork only 31. The calorie count also favors the venison. An ounce of pork has more than 86 calories and beef has 75 to the ounce while venison has only about 35 calories per ounce.

He said venison also tops other meats in amounts of phosphorus, thiamine, niacin and riboflavin.

Wild rabbits and duck have fewer calories than their domestic counterparts. Quail has a few more calories than dark chicken, but also has more protein.

NASA to retest Columbia engines at Hancock facility

With the new Space Shuttle orbiter 'Challenger' to make its maiden flight in January, the orbiter 'Columbia' will be undergoing refurbishment for the next year before its future operational flights.

Also receiving an overhaul during this time will be the three Space Shuttle main engines that helped power 'Columbia' to orbit on each of its five flights.

Dr. Judson Lovingood, manager of the Space Shuttle Main Engine Project at the Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Ala., says, the three engines are scheduled to undergo a complete overhaul before they are reused again on the orbiter 'Atlantis'.

These engines, which were operated at 100 percent of rated thrust on 'Columbia,' will be modified and retested to certify them for operation at 109 percent aboard 'Atlantis,' he reported.

The engines will be removed from Columbia and shipped back to the manufacturer — Rocketdyne, Division of Rockwell International, in Canoga Park, Calif., where they will be modified to run at a higher thrust level," says Lovingood.

After the engines arrive at the plant in late December, the first order of business will be to carefully disassemble them. Then every part will be inspected and tagged to determine wear and reusability, he explains.

"We know some parts will have to be replaced because of increased temperatures and pressures they will see at the higher power level," says Lovingood. "But, we would also like to see if the flight environment has a different effect on the hardware that we have seen in ground testing."

The engines will then be reassembled and thoroughly checked before being shipped to the Marshall Center's engine test facility at National Space Technology Laboratories in Hancock County where they will undergo a series of acceptance test firings.

The firings, tentatively scheduled for the fall of 1984, will include an ignition test, calibration test and endurance test. The engines underwent similar test firings before they were installed in the orbiter 'Columbia.'

After the engines have been accepted for flight by the Marshall Center they will be installed in the Atlantis in time for its first mission in 1985.

'Columbia,' which will be outfitted with three brand new engines, is scheduled to make its next flight in September 1983 carrying Spacelab, a reusable scientific laboratory developed for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration by the European Space Agency.

Mississippi elementary and secondary students. The open house was sponsored by NASA and Martin Marietta Aerospace to interest students in pursuing scientific and engineering careers and to give the public an opportunity to see the facility which is normally closed to all but badged employees. Martin Marietta manufactures the huge Shuttle external tanks for NASA at the facility.

It's none too soon to start "cooking up a storm for Christmas"—for home consumption and for gift-giving, is it? So, to get you off to a good start, here are a couple of recipes for a "little something" sweet.

One of the tastiest "little somethings" I know is Odile Carter's pecan confections, recipe for which I gave you sometime ago. These keep nicely in a cookie tin or jar, that is, if I'm not around. They can also be frozen...but remember to let the contents thaw in the container before opening so that they won't be soggy.

The other "little something," pecan pie cookies, is also quite tasty. So, here's:

PECAN CONFECTIONS
1 egg white
1 cup light brown sugar
1/8 tsp. salt
1 Tbsp. flour
1 cup chopped pecans
Beat the eggwhite (I use a wire whisk) to a stiff froth. Very, very gradually add a cup of brown sugar, with the tablespoon of flour mixed in, along with the salt.

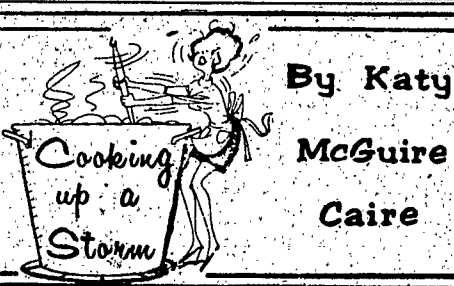

Fold in the pecans, and drop by small rounded teaspoons onto greased cookie sheets. Bake in a 350 degree oven for 15 minutes, watching so that the "burnt sugar" bottoms don't really burn. Let cool before removing from sheets. That's all there is to it, but oh, so good!

This makes two dozen cookies. I have found that this recipe works out best when mixed two "batches" at a time when I need a quantity of the cookies, otherwise the mixture is unwieldy. And be sure to leave a little space between the cookies, when you drop them, on the cookie sheets, so that they won't run together.

Made with pecan halves, these taste almost like pralines, with mixed chopped nuts or topping, like peanut butter cookies, without the nuts, like old-time burnt sugar cookies. You can use dark brown sugar if you prefer. They're good...and good for giving! And now, here's:

PECAN PIE COOKIES
First mixture:
2/3 sticks butter or margarine, melted
1 cup flour
1/2 cup brown sugar
1/2 tsp. baking powder
Second Mixture:
2 eggs, beaten
1/2 cup brown sugar

2 Tbsp. flour
3/4 cup corn syrup
1 tsp. vanilla
1/2 tsp. salt, optional
1 cup broken pecans
For first mixture, melt the butter and pour it over the mixture of flour, sugar, baking powder, mixing well together. Put into greased baking pan (11 x 7 x 1 1/2 in.). Bake 10 minutes at 350 degrees.

While the first mixture (the crust) bakes away happily, prepare the second mixture. Remove the first mixture from the oven, pour the second over it, bake at 350 degrees for half an hour, or until a knife comes out clean. Cool and cut into 40 small squares. P.S. With all the party of the first part, and party of the second part, like a legal brief, this takes longer to tell than it does to do, right? It's really easy. ## REAL VIEWS ON REAL ESTATE

By Dr. Dennis Tosh

PLANNING ON TWO INCOMES

QUESTION: My husband and I both work. We are interested in buying a home but cannot afford the mortgage payment on just my husband's income. Will a lender consider my income in qualifying us for a loan? D. P. Forest.

ANSWER: Dear D.P.: In the past, some mortgage lenders would not consider the working wife's income on a mortgage application, now would they lend to a single woman or female head-of-the-family. Fortunately, these discriminatory practices are against the law now, and qualified women—as well as qualified working couples—may obtain mortgage loans.

Such protection is the result of the Equal Credit Opportunity Act, the purpose of which was to assure that lenders would not treat one group of applicants more favorably than other groups except for reasonable and justifiable business reasons. Strict rules have been established to require fair dealing in all aspects of a credit transaction. The law is very broadly worded and covers all phases of a credit transaction.

For all loans, including real estate mortgages, lending institutions will now consider both incomes and make their decisions based on the individual merits of each application. The wife's employment history, stability and earning ability are evaluated by the same standards as the husband's.

However, in developing a budget for you and your husband insofar as a home purchase is concerned, it may be wise to exclude either spouse's income, if there is even the slightest possibility of one resigning from work to take care of children or attend school. If both incomes are needed for house payments and one is lost, severe financial strain could result.

For answers to your questions, write Dr. Dennis Tosh, P.O. Box 295, University, Ms. 38877.

ARTHRITIC CONDITIONS

13 million people in the U.S. suffer with arthritis and 90% of all Americans over age 50 are considered potential victims. There is no medical cure and the steady remedy is aspirin, which sometimes relieves the pain—even though they still don't understand how. But Chiropractic care is not medicine. Chiropractic care has proved a blessing to many sufferers of arthritic pain. Most arthritic changes progress slowly thus providing more time for proper care before permanent damage can result. Early Chiropractic care often arrests the condition. Given time with care, satisfactory recovery and rehabilitation can often take place. Chiropractic care treats arthritic conditions effectively.

TV talk show to premier Sat.

Viewers may call in and voice their opinions on a variety of subjects every Saturday night on "Late Night New Orleans," a one-hour talk show hosted by Al Smith premiering Saturday at 10:30 p.m. on WYES-TV, channel 12.

The first show will feature discussion on hospital emergency rooms and nuclear power plants. Guests for the first half of the show include Dr. Al Lauro, director of emergency services for Charity Hospital in New Orleans and Dr. Raul Guevara, Emergency Room Physician at East Jefferson Hospital in Metairie.

A vital element of the talk show will be a studio audience who will be encouraged to comment on the topics and question the guests. Live, informative and sometimes controversial topics are the goals of the show, a station spokesman says.

Smith has been involved in radio and television in New Orleans for several years and is active in civic affairs.

He has also worked in Atlanta, with the Turner Broadcasting System, as well as at stations in Dallas and Louisville, Ky.

Executive Producer of "Late Night New Orleans" is Ted Landphair.

VA home mortgage interest payments can be reduced

Many homeowners in Mississippi may sharply reduce their monthly mortgage payments on Veterans Administration-guaranteed single-family and mobile home loans if they refinance those loans.

Many such homeowners could benefit from the VA's consumer-savings program in which veterans may refinance home loans, now mostly in the 13 to 17.5 percent range, to a lower percentage through those financial institutions holding their mortgages, says Willie Fletcher, VA Loan Guaranty Officer for Mississippi in Jackson.

He notes that the last time VA-guaranteed loans were at the less-than-12.5 percent level was in Aug. 1980 when the rate was 12 percent. The highest level, 17.5 percent, was reached in September 1981.

Taking the example of an average 30-year, $60,000 VA-guaranteed loan, Fletcher says monthly principal and interest would total $641 at 12.5 percent.

At the following higher interest levels, other monthly mortgage payments now total $694 at 13 percent, $687 at 13.5 percent, $711 at 14 percent, $735 at 14.5 percent, $759 at 15 percent, $783 at 15.5 percent, $807 at 16 percent, $831 at 16.5 percent, $856 at 17 percent and $880 at 17.5 percent.

"So you can see the tremendous advantage for veterans to refinance guaranteed loans at the current under 13-percent level," Fletcher adds. "In the example, that could mean a saving of up to nearly $1,700 a year."

He says that could save the veteran from falling delinquent and losing the home or free dollars for his or her other financial needs such as food, clothing, schooling and medical services.

Refinancing processing procedures have been simplified by the VA.

A veteran need only contact his or her lender—a bank, savings and loan association, or other office to which he or she makes the mortgage payments. The lender then instructs the veteran on how to proceed. That done, the lender then sends the letter of instruction on intent to refinance the loan at a lower rate to the Loan Guaranty Division of the nearest VA regional office, Fletcher explains.

To qualify for refinancing, the new loan must be at a lesser rate of interest than the old VA-guaranteed loan, the veteran must obtain cash proceeds from the refinanced loan, and the new loan term must not exceed the original term of the loan to be refinanced, Fletcher says.

Further, if the veteran whose loan entitlement was used to obtain the existing loan is deceased, regardless of the cause of death, and the veteran's unmarried surviving spouse was a co-obligor on the loan, that spouse is considered to be a veteran for the purpose of refinancing the loan. That surviving spouse must own and occupy the home to be refinanced, he notes.

For further information, contact the lender or telephone the Jackson VA Regional Office Loan Guaranty Division at 432-5996 in the Biloxi-Gulfport area or toll free statewide at 1-800-682-5270.

High school students invited to tour France

La Nouvelle Orleans a Nancy, an international honors program in the French language for high school students, will be conducted next summer in Nancy, France, by the University of New Orleans.

The core of the program is a four-week stay at L'Universite de Nancy, where participants will take intensive courses in French language, history and culture. Successful completion of the courses will earn a student eight hours of college credit at UNO, a university spokesman says.

In addition to the study program participants will tour Brittany, Normandy and the Loire Valley, as well as Paris and Brussels (Belgium), accompanied by guides and faculty assistants who are experienced both in language instruction and in French culture. The total program, including the tours, runs the six-week period, July 3—Aug. 11, the spokesman explains.

"High school students of French often acquire a solid grounding in the rules of the French language, but do not develop oral fluency," says UNO Chancellor Leon J. Richelle. "The objective of this program is to help such students attain the linguistic and social competence necessary to be at ease in a French-speaking country," he reports.

"Total immersion in a foreign culture and a foreign language, even for a few weeks, brings permanent intellectual benefits as well as personal pleasure and adventure," Richelle says.

"The university is pleased to offer such an opportunity and views this program as a significant step in higher education and in the preservation of Louisiana's own cultural heritage," he adds.

The program is open to high school students, including those graduating this spring, who have studied French for at least two years and who have a cumulative grade point average of at least 3.25 in their French courses.

Deposit deadline is March 1, with the balance due by April 29.

For further information on the program write Dr. Robert Roemer, director, University Honors Program, UNO, New Orleans, La. 70148, or call 286-7008.

PRESENTING A PHOTOGRAPHIC SLIDE SHOW TO PASS MIDDLE SCHOOL YOUTHS IN THE SCHOOL LIBRARY IS JEANNINE LAMB OF HOT SPRINGS, ARK., DIRECTOR OF A PROJECT TITLED ARKANSAS AUTUMN—A TAPESTRY OF VITAL AGING.

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.
Pass Christian Middle School students recently attended a program offered at the school by two Gulf Coast agencies which explained various aspects of aging to the youths.

The Gulf Coast Mental Health Center and South Mississippi Planning and Development District, both headquartered in Gulfport, sponsored the presentation.

Speakers discussed how young people can assist senior citizens, the reasons why some elderly seem to behave unusually, what changes a youngster can expect in his own behavior as he ages, good health practices to avoid premature aging, and services available for the old.

Jeaninne Lamb of Hot Springs, Ark. and director of a photographic and oral project named Arkansas Autumn, a study of creative older adults, narrated a slide presentation and brought photographic displays which featured six senior citizens involved in creative endeavors.

Lamb took all the photographs and organized the program funded by Arkansas firms and government agencies.

She said the project is aimed at developing understanding of the elderly and exhibiting how senior citizens can enhance their lives.

Bob Entekin, mental health center elderly services coordinator of Gulfport, urged youths to develop good health practices now to avoid aging prematurely. He explained each phase of life prepares a person for the next phase.

An individual must learn to cope with each phase of his life, socialize, have a place to live and have a good income, Entekin noted as goals.

Ann McGiluray, a mental health center voluntary coordinator of Biloxi, explained how she began an art career late in life and methods for coping with changes in life.

"You pull life to you, don't let it get away," she said in urging the youngsters to develop a positive mental attitude as they age.

Garnette Wetzel, day care administrator of Southern Mississippi Planning and Development District, outlined services the agency offers to assist the elderly.

She urged youths to inform needy relatives of the assistance programs available through the district. Wetzel said those programs include delivery of hot meals and bus transportation.

Scottie Maddox, Young Volunteers in Action coordinator of the Biloxi Parks and Recreation Department, stressed improved communication between youths and the elderly so both age groups can learn from each other.

"Stop thinking about yourselves and think about others. Older people are different, but they're still people. Take what you know and share it with an older person," Maddox said to the youths.

BOB ENTREKIN OF GULFPORT, GULF COAST MENTAL HEALTH CENTER ELDERLY SERVICES COORDINATOR, URGES PASS MIDDLE SCHOOL YOUTHS TO BEGIN GOOD HEALTH PRACTICES NOW TO AVOID PREMATURE AGING.

Book Review

"Wearted by queries on my travels to the far corners of the earth about why I live in Mississippi," author Bern Keating explains, "I decided to write a whole book as an answer."

The result is "Mississippi"—a visual and verbal panorama of the modern state of Mississippi, written and illustrated by Bern and Franke Keating, a husband and wife team from Greenville, Mississippi, who stand among the finest of America's photo-journalists.

Available in mid-November, the 192-page book contains over 200 color photographs and is a tribute to all aspects of life in Mississippi.

Commissioned by the Mississippi Board and Department of Economic Development and published by the University Press of Mississippi, the book was produced entirely in the state. Composition was done by Hayes Graphic Arts Service; color separations by Mississippi Engraving and Color, Inc.; printing by Mississippi Printing Company; and binding by Coleman Reid Bindery.

William T. Hackett, executive director of the Department of Economic Development, said the agency funded publication of the book because "we feel that a book of this nature will enhance the image of the state. It was long overdue," he said.

The book, which is dedicated to children, presents an overview of the entire state in the splendor of the land and the character of its people.

Divided into nine chapters with an introduction, "Mississippi" focuses on the Mississippi River and six geographical regions: the Gulf Coast, the eastern section, Natchez and the Natchez Trace, Jackson, the Delta, and "Faulkner-Haunted Country."

Bern and Franke Keating live in the Mississippi Delta, but for much of the year they travel the world on assignment for leading periodicals.

Bern Keating has published 24 books and several hundred articles in such magazines as Life, The New Yorker, Reader's Digest, Playboy, and National Geographic. Franke Keating's photographic work has appeared in Smithsonian, National Geographic, Travel and Leisure, Time—and in other leading magazines.

Price of the book is $25 plus Mississippi sales tax. According to officials of University Press, bookstores in the state will have "Mississippi" in stock by mid-November.

Orders can also be placed through University Press, 3825 Ridgewood Road, Jackson, Ms. 39211.

"Dark Hour of Noon," the autobiographical first novel of Christine Szambelan-Strevinsky was published this month by Lippincott Junior Books.

A graduate student at the University of New Orleans, Ms. Szambelan-Strevinsky was only seven years old when the Nazis invaded Poland in 1939. Less than two years later, along with a small group of friends, she was a seasoned, highly skilled fighter in the Polish resistance. Her book tells the story of her childhood—and of the children who fought beside her.

"They were relentless in their efforts," Ms. Szambelan-Strevinsky writes about her group in "Dark Hour of Noon." "They trained; they climbed fences and trees; they learned to scale walls and drainpipes. They traveled through sewers and cellars until the rooms and passages under the city became as familiar as their own courtyards."

Her mother still gave her toys and planned for her first communion, but Christine had already blown up a supply train, run messages, and killed Nazis with her own hands. "As a child, I didn't question my actions," she remembers now. "It seemed natural. We Poles are brought up with a tradition of resisting, of fighting to preserve our country and our culture. Whether children were part of an organized group or painting out swastikas on their own, they were showing the Nazis how hated they were. We were all part of the resistance."

"Now it's happening again. Poles turn on their televisions, face the sets to the window, and then go out for a walk. They are showing the government the contempt they feel for propaganda."

Ms. Szambelan-Strevinsky, whose father was killed during a bombing toward the war's end, was one of two children in her band to survive the war, and the only one to live to adulthood. In 1949, with a younger sister, she immigrated to Chicago to live with an aunt. She knew no English when she arrived, but nine months later, with the help of a remarkable teacher, Jeannette Cassin, to whom the book is dedicated, she was reading Shakespeare.

The mother of two sons and a daughter, Ms. Szambelan-Strevinsky began college at UNO when she was 45. "Dark Hour of Noon" started as a course project. She received her bachelors degree from UNO in 1981 and currently serves as a graduate assistant in English at the university. She plans to become a teacher, and is working now on her second novel.

At the close of "Dark Hour of Noon," Trina, the character based on Ms. Szambelan-Strevinsky, returns to where her father, now dead, hid "evidence" of Nazi atrocities. The papers are gone. But Trina vows, "I will remember. I'll make them remember. I promise." Almost 40 years later, Christine Szambelan-Strevinsky's first novel is the fulfillment of that promise.

The French Honor Society at St. Stanislaus High School in Bay St. Louis recently entertained French students and their guests at a soiree. The students took part in French games and enjoyed entertainment put on by members of the honor society, an SSC spokesman says.

A skit was presented by Socorro Alcala, Joelle Dupont, Ed Dunn, Rodney Keel, and Michael McMahon.

Following the entertainment some well-known French songs were sung by Capt. Max Berns. The students were able to join in for some of the songs.

The program was concluded with refreshments of French pastries and beverages.

Guests of the honor society were Capt. and Mrs. Max Berns, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Frontenac, Dr. and Mrs. L.T.

Maxey, and Mrs. Mimi LeFevre, who have all lived in France at some time.

Earlier this fall, the Spanish Honor Society hosted a Mexican supper for Mr. and Mrs. Paul White and Marianna Williams of Bay St. Louis. Mr. and Mrs. White have lived in several countries in Latin America and they recently served in the Peace Corps in Honduras.

Williams is a native of Ecuador.

The students were able to speak Spanish with their guests and hear about the customs and people of Latin America.

The president of the French Honor Society is Michael Doyle, and the president of the Spanish Honor Society is Christine Longo. Sponsor of both groups is Mrs. Helen Currie.
